MRS. GRISWOLD WAS ADDICTED TO DRUG HABIT

Contest Over $500,000 Estate
Developed Testator Used
Narcotics Freely.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 7.—David Stewart, Baltimore attorney and divorced husband of the late Mrs. Alice Gerry Griswold, sprang a surprise in orphans' court here yesterday in the contest over the will of his former wife. He testified that she was a habitual drug user and that it was largely due to this that they were divorced in 1912. Mrs. Griswold was prominent socially in this country and abroad.

The testimony came in the hearing of the appeal from the probate of the will, brought by Countess Anne St. Clair De Contubia, daughter of Mrs. Griswold, who was cut off with a bequest of $500, while the remainder of the estate, variously estimated as upward of $500,000, was left to Mrs. Mary M. Drischman, a butcher's wife.

Was Second Husband.
Stewart, who was the second husband of Mrs. Griswold, testified that shortly after they were married in 1896 he learned his wife was addicted to the use of narcotics. After six years she completely lost her mind, he said, and he took her to Portsmouth, N. H., where she recovered in three months, after the drugs had been taken from her. He added that after their return to Baltimore Mrs. Griswold resumed taking drugs.

Three different times she nearly died from taking overdoses, he testified, and had less and less control over her mind as she grew older. She had a mania for changing her friends.

"If I asked her to give up the drugs she berated me. Time and again she charged me with cruelty because I did not get up in the night and get a prescription filled for her," he declared.

He declared that in 1914 Mrs. Griswold's net income from her estate was $22,000 a year, and that she frequently declared she wanted all of her money to go to her daughter and her children when she died.

Mrs. Drischman sat in the witness box for nearly four hours answering a battery of questions.

Woman Calm on Stand.

Mrs. Drischman, who for the past two days has been charged by witnesses with keeping Mrs. Griswold a prisoner in an obscure cottage in Northfield, with stripping her of her jewelry and money, and finally of inducing her to sign a will disinheriting her daughter, was calm under the barrage.

Judge Cole obtained an admission from her that the estate consisted of three mortgages amounting to $75,000 on Atlantic City properties, an electric automobile, and some furniture. During the morning John H. Cross, member of a Baltimore real estate agency, who managed the estate previously to Mrs. Drischman, testified that when he turned it over to her it was worth at least $500,000.

Earlier Drischman testified that a year before her death Mrs. Griswold came to her and told her "they" had hidden her clothes, and begged her to take her home to lunch. The witness testified that the former society leader was clothed in an "old skirt and a man's coat."

ASQUITH GROUP TO START MORNING PAPER IN LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 7.—London is to have a new morning paper. The Westminster Gazette, whose politics are moderate liberal, as represented by the Asquith element of the party, is to be transferred to that field.

Sir William Robertson Nicoll, editor of a British weekly, in announcing the transformation, says the Gazette's size and appearance will be somewhat like the Times, and the price will be twopence. H. A. Spencer will be political director.

It is announced "the experiment has very influential support."

SETTLE CANAL TOLL BY DIPLOMACY, SAYS COLT

The question of granting free passage through the Panama canal to American ships should be settled through diplomatic channels or by arbitration, and not by legislation as provided in the pending Borah bill, because the "peace of the world rests upon the sanctity of treaties," Senator Colt, Republican, of Rhode Island, declared in the Senate yesterday.

Ellen J. Dunn Asks Divorce.

Alleging cruelty and inadequate support, Ellen J. Dunn has filed suit in the District Supreme Court against William E. Dunn, who, she says, is a plumber by trade earning $8.50 a day, for separate maintenance. The couple were married in this city April 3, 1921, and Attorneys Bell, Marshall & Rice appear for the plaintiff.
